These rights are the rights of every person who is asked to be in a medical research study. As a research participant, I have the following rights:

1. I have the right to be told what the research is trying to find out.

2. I have the right to be told about all research procedures, drugs, and/or devices and whether any of these are different from what would be used in standard practice.

3. I have the right to be told about any risks, discomforts or side effects that might reasonably occur as a result of the research.

4. I have the right to be told about the benefits, if any, I can reasonably expect from participating.

5. I have the right to be told about other choices I have and how they may be better or worse than being in the research. These choices may include other procedures, drugs or devices.

6. I have the right to be told what kind of treatment will be available if the research causes any complications.

7. I have the right to have a chance to ask any questions about the research or the procedure. I can ask these questions before the research begins or at any time during the research.

8. I have the right to refuse to be part of the research or to stop at any time. This decision will not affect my care or my relationship with my doctor or this institution in any other way.

9. I have the right to receive a copy of the signed and dated written consent form for the research.

10. I have the right to be free of any pressure as I decide whether I want to be in the research study.

If I have any questions or concerns I can ask the researcher or the research assistant. I can also contact the Office of the Human Research Protection Program (OHRPP), which helps protect research study participants. I can reach the OHRPP by calling 310-825-5344 from 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM, Monday to Friday. If I call this office and do not speak English or Spanish, I should have someone available who can interpret for me. I may also write OHRPP, 11000 Kinross Avenue, Suite 211, Box 951694, Los Angeles, CA 90095-1694.

Researchers: Call 310-825-5344 for translations or information about using this form as part of the “short form” process.